An anonymous messenger delivered the ancient gongs to the Washington Post with this cryptic note: "They've been traveling about 1,000 miles since the ball." Indonesian Ambassador Moekarto Notowidigdo, who believed a party goer had removed them for souvenir, said his embassy's Gamelan Orchestra just couldn't make music without the 40 pounds of irreplaceable gongs. The four gongs are about the size of dinner plates.

"It's the only sport I've competed in." he explained. "I played a little football (soccer) as a kid, but I've been boxing since I was 14 and forgot about everything else when I met Mr. Ahlqvist."

Ahlqvist repeated to Johansson that, because of taxes and expense, he was boxing Patterson for about one-quarter of what he a shortstop, recently was diswould collect for the same job in Stockholm or Gothenburg.

"Td fight him for nothing," said Johansson. "You've always heard about the hungry fighter being the toughest," said Ahlqvist. "Well, Ingemar's hunger is desire. Sweden has never Phillips had a champion in boxing. It has been my ambition to give it one since I started promoting in an old building in Gothenburg in 1932 I am York Yankee farmhand, is reconfident I have him in Ingemar."

AHLQVIST'S SUCCESS STORY is more sustained and re markable than that of Johansson. Indeed one brought on the other.

Ahlqvist, just turned 62, first came to the United States in 192 at the age of 25, with little more than passage money, and speaking English haltingly, He did odd jobs while attending school at New York University, wormed his way into the editorial rooms of the old New Work World to study American newspaper methods. He became the New York correspondent for Swedish newspapers.

Four years after returning to Gothenburg in October, 1928, Ahlqvist launched his publishing career. This led to his partnership with Ake Olsson. They published All Sport, a monthly, and Rekord, a weekly considered the finest sports publication in Europe.

Eddie Ahlqvist is now a very rich man. Ingemar Johansson is Sunday afternoon, Feb. 8, at 1 CHAMPAIGN, Ill.—Illinois' also loaded with dough. Let's hope that the Sweet Swede's right hand p.m.

Free Vs. Free And Easy

Adlai Stevenson made a thoughtful talk the other day in which he con-Western democracies. But it isn't clear that he got to the root of the matter.

He described America and its free friends as having a chaotic, selfish, indifferent commercial society," and declared that outer tyranny" like Russia's may well triumph over the inner, purposeless tyranny of a confused and aimless way of life."

Echoing a complaint lodged by a good many others, Stevenson said U.S. diplomacy and strategy in all its phases has been to a depressing degree purely defensive," even though our principles of justice and the pursuit of happiness still have positive validity.

He seems to get close, but not all the way, to the heart of things when he suggests we may have confused the free with the free and easy." If freedom means ease alone, its spirit will die though its forms remain, he says.

Where Stevenson perhaps falls short is in the evident implication that what he complains of is a condition only of the present age, a failure only of today's leaders.

But is this the fact?

Were the men of the free world anything but defensive as they came up under the guns of Kaiser Wilhelm II in World War I? Were they not pushed to the brink of defeat before they struck militantly for the preservation of freedom?

Was the situation not as bad or worse 20 years later when Hitler's shadow spread across Europe? Only when the menace was stripped of its last thin veil did the free nations hasten to form lines against it.

The evidence of history is eloquent that men battle militantly for freedom only when they do not have it or when they see it in desperate peril.

When they believe the danger is small, they turn with immense contrasted the aggressiveness of the iron- centration to the enjoyment of freedisciplined Communist tyranny with dom's fruits. Freedom inevitably the sluggish" complacency of the breeds ease and complacency. They are inherent occupational hazards. Most men do not enjoy liberty with

> This may be one of the great ironies of history-that men who will fight and die to gain freedom turn soft in the appreciation of their prize.

> Today the irony is sharpened by the more complex nature of the new tyranny which threatens.

For, actually, a strong case can be made that free men now are alert as never before to dangers of any size. When, in past times, did we have a NATO, a huge joint arsenal of devastating weapons, a worldwide propaganda agency to tell our story abroad? The answer, of course, is never.

Our alliances and our arsenal are still defensive," admittedly. But, at least they represent positive action FOR freedom, taken before it is pressed to the wall. Men who act thus have not lost freedom's spirit.

Unhappily, our task today is complicated by the fact that Communist tyranny wears a mask, a philosophy which professes concern for all human-

Our democratic ideals once rang 'round the world. But we do not know how to make them ring in the ears of millions in 1959. We sound selfish to many peoples. Meantime, tragically, they listen with interest to beckoning communism, a truly selfish fraud upon

We free peoples have only just learned real military alertness. It is perhaps understandable that we are still slow to deal with a far wider menace. Yet we can hope that the prodding of the Stevensons will speed us to great new levels of effort in free-

CARROLLTON - Mr. and Mrs Curtis Bishop will quietly obs their 50th wedding anniversary their home Tuesday, Feb. 3. Because of the ill health of both no ormal celebration of the event nas been planned.

Mr. Bishop, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bishop and Miss Eva Dagley the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dagley were married Feb. 3, 1909 at the home of the bride's parents n White Hall by the Rev. H. L. Carpenter, who was then pastor of the Christian church in that ity. Their attendants were the late Nita Simmons and Harry Mitchell of Roodhouse who were hemselves married some time after the Bishop wedding.

Following their marriage Mr and Mrs. Bishop made their home on a farm but moved to Carrollton 41 years ago where they have since resided. Both are active in church and civic life, Mrs. Bishop being a deaconess in the First Baptist hurch in this city. She also served as president of the Ladies Aid of the church for 14 years and is active in the Missionary Society and the Sunday school work of the church. She is a member of the Rebekah lodge and the Past Noble Grand club. Professionally the was a seamstress and worked n that line until ill health forced

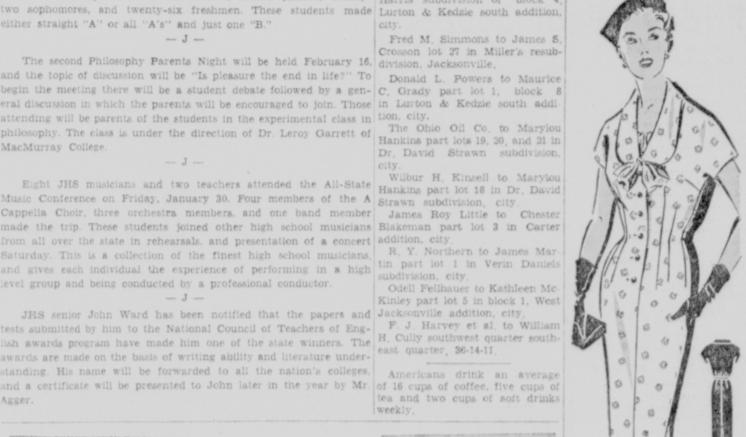

Mr. Bishop is a former trustee of the First Baptist church of Carrollton. He was engaged i business in his early life with his brother the late Louis Bishop, in the Bishop Creamery and Confectionery. NEW YORK (A) - Reuben Var- ned Bright (I), gas, a swarming 5-1 underdog, dropped Tony Anthony for a nine count in the eighth round on the way to a split decision in a bloody 10-round brawl Friday night at Madison Square Garden. Anthony weighed 177, Vargas 1867.

Referee Dave Feld called it even in rounds but gave Vargas, of New York, the edge in points 7 5 on the strength of the knockdown, Judge Charley Rosen saw it 5-4-1 for Vargas. Judge Mike Davidowitch scored it 6-4 in favor of Anthony, of Richmond, Calif. The AP card was 5-5 and would have put Vargas on top because of the knockdown, 7 points to 5.
